handle Railroad to sustain their bridge at that point while they are reconstructing the It is a question of justice whether the river men shall be stopped in their business that the railroad company may build their bridge and look after their own traffic, or whether they stop their traffic as a consequence of their own repairs. They have no right to close the channel, and I don't see how any steamboat captain or company could be touched by law for knock or company could be touched by law for knocking the piles down. There is a quick bend in the rivor at that point, just above the bridge, and the current is thrown swiftly to the north shore. In swinging his tow to make the temporary channel, I suppose the current carried the pilot of the Advance too far south, and he had to strike the piles. It would be madness for a captain to deliberately rue into an obstruction and take the risk of sinking his boats and tow, just to knock some piles out.

SUBJECT TO TEMPORARY FITS. Lehr's Friends Say He is Not Responsible for His Actions.

A NEW LIGHT THROWN ON THE CASE

The moment the first reports got abroad of the unfortunate homicide in camp near Confluence, on Sunday night, public opinion-always addicted to jumping at conclusions-took a dead stand against the young man who had committed the action. If, however, the affair be read by the light of information gleaned last evening for THE DISPATCH, a different opinion may be formed as to the guilt or innocence of James Lehr.

In the first place, the residence of Lehr's nother-now wife of James M. May, of 137 Bidwell street, Allegheny-was visited. Mrs. May was too deeply affected by the unfortunate occurrence to appear, but the young man's stepfather, Mr. May, gave all the information in his power. Lehr's father and mother were separated many years ago, and the father is now resident in Mifflin county, where he practices as an attorney. Young Lehr continued to live with his mother after her second marriage, and Mr. May has always found him a hard-working and quiet boy. He would sometimes act in a curious way, as though his head were not all right; but these fits were short-lived and didn't amount to much.

SEVERAL HAD NOTICED IT. He worked as a short-order cook in Mo Bride's restaurant on Federal street for a good while, and about four weeks ago he left his mother's residence and went to board with friends named Hall, who live over the drug store on the corner of Federal street and North avenue. He reached his twenty-second year only in May last.

A well-known and respectable resident in the same neighborhood confirmed Mr. May's statement as to Lehr's general good charac-ter; but remarked that the young lellow never left home without carrying a revolver in his pocket. He had never known Lehr to drink, and had never heard of his being involved in any quarrel, or mixed up in any disorderly conduct. A trip was then made to Federal street, where Lehr has been boarding of late, and it was here that the reporter obtained the clearest description of the strange fits to which the young man is subject. Only Mrs. Hall and her daughter were at home and they seemed in deep distress about "Jim," as they call Lehr. Mr. Hall started for Somerset to-day in order to help the prisoner to the best of his ability.

Mrs. Hall, a shrewd, quiet lady, stated that she had known "Jim" ever since he was an urchin in short pants. Her son Tom and he had always been friends, and to this day Tom is the only one who can manage Lehr. "You see," she continued, "poor Jim is not all there. SELF-ADMITTED INSANITY. "We all know that, and I have heard him own it himself, over and over. Sometimes he takes a fit of the queerest kind, and while the fit lasts he is little less than a madman. He goes about snapping at everyone, and behaving in the most frantic manner Why, a few weeks ago he took a fit in thi very room, and you would have thought a cyclone had broken out. He recognized nobody-not even me-and heaven only knows how the matter would have ended if my son Tom had not happened in and quieted him down. Tom has great power over him, even in the worst of his fits. Jim remembered noting about his conduct next day.

"As to his drinking, I don't believe word of it He always hated liquor, and last week he threw five bottles of whisky out of the window for fear any of us might

Mrs. Hall then went on to note Lehr's many good qualities. When in his right mind, she says, he was very good hearted and quite peaceable. She had never known he owned a revolver till a few days ago, and she thinks his brother in Indiana county must have given it to him. He could have got drunk hundreds of times if he wished as his father sent him plenty of money, but she "had never seen a sign of liquor on

In conclusion, Mrs. Hall declared her firm conviction that the homicide was the result of one of Lehr's frequent and peculia fits of temporary insanity.

STRIKE IS IN VIEW

It is a Predicted Outcome of Window Glass Workers' Hitch.

THE MEN WANT NO REDUCTION. And the Manufacturers Aver They Cannot Pay the Scale.

THE CONFERENCE IS ADJOURNED From present indications there may be trcuble between the window glass manufacturers and workers over the wage scale. A strike is said to be imminent. The men have made a demand for higher wages, and say they will have it enforced. Their employers have proposed a reduction in wages, and they just as loudly say they will insist. With two wage scales hanging in the air, and one side as determined as the other, the and one side as determined as the other, the matter will nang fire for sometime. If it is not arranged satisfactorily before the be-burg which are waiting for the new motors

A meeting of the Wage Committees the manufacturers and workers was held vesterday at the Monongahela House. It was supposed on Monday that, owing to the absence of Secretary Loeffler and others of the manufacturers' committee, who were in the East, the conference would be postponed until Thursday. They got home in time, however, and, with the exception of President Catlin, of the Manufacturers' Association, all members of the employers' committee, were present.

DETAILS OF THE SPLIT. The manufacturers were represented by William Loeffler, C. W. Phillips and T. O. C. Campbell, Pittsburg; W. T. Gray, of Zanesville, O., and L. Mambourg, of For toria, O. The workers were represented by James Campbell, L. L. Conaway, W. H. Slicker, Daniel Winters, H. D. Swenrer, Mr. Jones and Mr. Springer. The conference organized by the election of Mr. Phillips chairman of the joint committee, with T. O. C. Campbell and W. H. Slicker, as secretaries. After discussing the situation and outlook for three hours, an adjournment was had for dinner.

In the afternoon meeting, the serious business of the conference was entered into by the workers demanding the 50-cent single bracket advanced to 56 cents, and re fusing to allow any double sheets to be booked below $1 10 bracket. This would be an advance of 12 per cent on the "C" bracket single, and equal to 55 per cent advance of double sheets of eight-tenths to twelve-eighteenths quality. In addition to this, they demanded the straight list without any discount off or on. During the last two years there was 10 per cent off the list and then 5 per cent added, and therefore the "straight" list means 5 per cent ad-

The manufacturers, on the other hand, as The manufacturers, on the other hand, at first asked for 10 per cent reduction, but inally offered to compromise by a 5 per cent reduction from last year's wages. This offer was declined by the workers, they stating that the proposition they made is their ultimatum.

Finding it impossible to agree, the conference adjourned to meet August 13. In the meantime, the workers will submit their scale for signature to the individual manufacturers throughout the Western dis-manufacturers throughout the Western district.

The above is Secretary Loeffler's official report of the meeting. When asked what he thought the outcome of the matter would be, Mr. Loeffler said:

"You can quote me, if you wish to, as saying that I do not think one manufacturer will sign the workers' scale. Further than this I do not care to express any opinion as to whether or not there will be

-Mr. Moore, of the Westinghouse Com-BOTH SIDES CALL IT BLUFF. One of the Manufacturers' Committee was asked the same question. The gentleman said: "The workers' committee made the assertion that they would present their scale to the individual manufacturers, without regard to the action of the association, to-day. This bluff means that they will entirely ignore the association, and particularly the manufacturers who were present to-day. They think by doing this they will be able to break the organization. This has been done in other associations, but I do not think it will work in the window glass trade. Chambers & McKee, who are not in our association, set a questionable example by submitting an individual scale to the workers. This scale was an the workers. This scale was an increase over the scale presented by us, and the workers are ready to take advantage of it. Nothing would please the Jeannette people better than to have a lockout among the men in Pittsburg and the West. They could then put all the glass they wanted on the market, and get good prices for it. This might break the strike, as the manufacturers here are not to be caught that way. Members of the workers' association said the manufacturers would not succeed in their blaff. Two years ago the manufacturrers demanded and got 10 per cent discount from the regular scale. Last year the manufacturers restored this to 5 per cent, and now they want the original scale. When it comes to a question of allowing the Eastern factories while the Western men are idle, the latter will sign the scale soon enough, it is believed.

POWDERLY SMELLED A RAT. Sheet Iron Workers Ask the General Executive Board for a Charter.

The following special was received last night from Chicago: night from Chicago: An application was received to-day by the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, asking a charter for a local assembly of sheet iron ing a charter for a local assembly of sheet from workers in Pittsburg. Mr. Powderly thought he smelled a rat. There is a strike on among the sheet from workers at Pittsburg and Mr. Powderly thought that some of the non-union men who had taken the places of the strikers were seeking to get into the order. The application was denied until an investigation can be made.

Joseph L. Evans, one of the organizers of D. A. No. 3, was shown the telegram. He stated that it was evidently a mistake, as there was no strike among the sheet iron there was no strike among the sheet iron workers in this vicinity. The only non-union sheet mill is that of Wood & Sous, at union sheet mill is that of Wood & Sons, at McKeesport, and he did not think any effort had been made by the men there to organize. The Amalgamated Association tried to organize them in 1886 into "Welcome Stranger" Lodge, but the proprietors of the mill discharged all the union meh. A strike was declared and it ended in less than six weeks. The mill has remained non-union since that time. If the men wanted to organize they would have to do it through either Organizers Evans, Hughes or Doyle, of this city.

She stated that the committee was to have had the use of the building until July 15, and that the extension of time was a courtesy on the part of the contractors.
